

Revision of PSFC for Terminal 1 Domestic Flights

Central Japan International Airport Co., Ltd. is revising the Passenger Service Facilities Charge (PSFC) for passengers on domestic flights at Terminal 1 (current terminal) as of October 1st, 2019.

The Passenger Service Facilities Charge is a fixed charge payable by passengers for the use of shared facilities such as the arrival/departure concourse areas and gate lounges in the Passenger Terminal Building. In order to further clarify the relationship between the merits of the facilities and the respective expenses incurred, the following changes will be made such that the variable expenses that were previously borne by the airline will now be directly payable by passengers as part of the revised Passenger Service Facilities Charge.<sup>1</sup>

Centrair has made use of this usage charge to bring greater convenience to passengers on domestic flights through the provision of free Wi-Fi and charging facilities, the expansion of bus lounges, and the improvement of the waiting area. However we will continue to improve the facilities and services at the terminal for the convenience and commodity of all passengers.

<sup>1</sup> These variable expenses incurred previously were indirectly charged to the passengers. As such, this revision of fees has no impact on our company's revenue.
