Overview from 2020

- The number of international passenger flights reached a new record high of 486 per week in January 2020, but due to the spread of the COVID19 infections, all flights were suspended from April 1st to June 16th, 2020. Since then, some routes have resumed operations.

- Since April 2020, multiple international passenger flights were operating as cargo.

- The number of domestic passenger flights was 97 per day as of January 1, 2020, but due to the spread of COVID19 it reached the lowest frequency recorded with 21 flights per day on May 1, 2020. Since then, the number of flights has been recovering.

Many of the plans during the summer timetable are still undecided due to the effects of COVID19. For detail information on each route please check each airline.
